

The Vineyards of San Benito County are tucked away in a nurturing microclimate ideal for producing premium wines. Regional geology, geography, and climate combine to create an optimal wine-growing region. Cool ocean breezes flow into the area from nearby Monterey Bay. During the summer months, when other wine growing regions suffer from high temperatures, the vineyards of San Benito County benefit from the refreshing gentle winds. The long cool growing season produces a higher quality wine. The vintners of San Benito County are proud to offer wines that continue a tradition of excellence since the 1850's. Enjoy San Benito wine country!
